

between the display substrate and the flexible glass layer and covering the touch sensitive area, wherein a location of a touch input applied to the flexible glass layer in the touch sensitive area is determined by detecting a signal induced by capacitive coupling between the conductive film and the touch input.

* * * * *